SMS to present at ASX SMIDcaps Conference in Sydney

Structural Monitoring Systems Plc (“SMS” or “the Company”) (ASX: SMN & SMNOA) is pleased to have been selected as one of just 20 small and mid-cap Australian companies to present at the ASX SMIDcaps Conference presented by the ASX in partnership with Bell Financial Group in Sydney on Wednesday March 26.

The bi-annual hybrid conference provides an opportunity to hear live from 20 of the most promising ASX-listed small and mid-cap companies with an impressive line-up for the 2025 presenting roster.

SMS Chairman and CEO Ross Love will present in person on the day sharing the Company’s vision, strategy and investment proposition and some important information regarding recent company milestones as well as some of the challenges and opportunities in the current geopolitical environment.

The event showcases the Company to a vast network of Australian investors and starts off with a market update from Bell Financial Group, followed by a mix of 20-minute and 7-minute presentations.

Investors can also engage directly with presenting companies via the online Q&A portal and are invited to attend in Sydney in person at the ASX’s Exchange Square or online free of charge.

SMS Chairman and CEO Ross Love Commented:

“This is a fantastic opportunity for us to present both in person and online to a vast network of investors at a very important juncture for the Company.

“The last six months for us as a Company has incorporated a successful and significant capital raise from both institutional and retail investors that will underwrite our growth strategy moving forward, a cost saving internal restructure and also crucial milestones in the approval process for our CVM™ sensor technology.

“I look forward to engaging with investors directly and online and being provided with a platform to communicate both our medium and longer term growth strategies as we navigate some significant external dynamics.”
