Cochlear awaits clarification on application of US tariff

Cochlear Limited (ASX:COH) refers to the announcement by the US Government on the introduction of a tariff of 10% on exports to the US from Australia.

There are complexities in understanding the application of the new tariff. Cochlear has long been importing its products under a chapter of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States that provides for duty-free importation on a range of products into the US, including hearing implants.

We are expecting further detail in the US Customs and Border Protection Notice of Implementation, which is expected to be published in the next week. An update will be provided to the market in due course.
