

Global Clinical Validation Positions Memphasys for Commercial Rollout

MARCH 2025 QUARTERLY ACTIVITY REPORT AND APPENDIX 4C

Memphasys Limited (ASX: MEM), a leader in advanced reproductive biotechnology, achieved major milestones during the March quarter, setting the foundation for commercial launch of its Felix™ System in key global markets and advancing the diagnostic potential of its RoXsta™ System.

Key Highlights

Felix™ System: Pivotal Phase III Clinical Trial Completed and Confirmed Best-in-Class

The March quarter marked the successful delivery of Memphasys' pivotal human Phase III clinical trial for the Felix™ System — a critical milestone toward regulatory approval and global commercialisation.

Following the Last Patient Last Visit (LPLV) milestone achieved in February, Memphasys delivered the data lock on 24 February 2025 after ensuring that the dataset underwent rigorous verification and quality control, to pave the way for robust statistical analysis.

In late March, the Company announced the unblinding and results of the trial. Conducted with Monash IVF, the study showed the Felix™ System:

- Achieved its primary endpoint of embryo utilisation rate.
- Was statistically superior to Density Gradient Centrifugation (DGC) and non-inferior to Swim-Up (SU).
- Demonstrated zero adverse events, highlighting its safety.
- Was the preferred/easier method by embryologists, with 100% favouring Felix™ over DGC.

Felix™ is now validated as a safe, effective, and highly efficient sperm separation device — setting a new benchmark in ART (Assisted Reproductive Technology). These results underpin the Company's regulatory submissions for CE Mark (Europe), TGA (Australia), and CDSCO (India) approvals.

Global Market Expansion Underway

Memphasys accelerated its market entry strategy during the quarter, making significant inroads into the Chinese and Brazilian fertility markets.

China: Strategic Utilisation Testing with Heranova

Memphasys initiated in vitro utilisation testing with Heranova Lifesciences HK Limited at Sichuan Jinxin Xinan Women & Children Hospital — a major fertility facility in Chengdu, China. The study covers 50 IVF cases and measures both biological and operational outcomes, such as improved sperm motility, morphology, and workflow efficiency. The results will support a licensing and distribution strategy targeting China's USD 9 billion IVF market.

Brazil: Clinical Engagement and Investor Interest

Planning for clinical utility testing of Felix™ is underway at Laboratorio Androscience, led by globally renowned andrologist Prof. Jorge Hallak. The study benchmarks Felix™ against current standards and is expected to support regulatory filings and clinician education. Memphasys has an NDA in place with an investor group who will be commencing market analysis for both human and animal applications. This early engagement with local investors and stakeholders may lead to commercial agreements and further capital support in Brazil and Latin America.

RoXsta™ System: Publication and Veterinary Applications

In January, a manuscript highlighting RoXsta™'s capabilities was published in the scientific journal Antioxidants, validating its use as a diagnostic tool for oxidative stress. The study showcased its application across multiple cosmetic sectors.

Key findings included:

- Profiling antioxidant capacity in seminal plasma, plant products, and commercial cosmetics.
- Enabling targeted therapeutic interventions for oxidative stress in fertility and medical applications.
- Supporting further application in livestock health, including bull fertility and early detection of mastitis in dairy cattle.

RoXsta™ is being positioned for high-value diagnostic and agricultural applications with commercial interest emerging in both clinical agricultural and veterinary markets.

Strengthened Funding Supports Commercial Rollout

R&D Rebate Loan Secured

In March, Memphasys secured a $473,000 loan facility against its FY25 R&D Tax Incentive. This provides near-term working capital to support Felix™ commercialisation efforts and CE Mark registration. The loan is secured against a projected ~$900k rebate expected in September 2025 and matures on 30 November 2025.

CEO Dr. David Ali emphasised the importance of maintaining funding flexibility, stating the Company would continue to explore non-dilutive funding options to accelerate product rollout.

Post-Period Event: $1.275 Million Capital Raise Secured

Subsequent to the quarter-end, Memphasys completed a $1.275 million Placement to new and existing investors. Each share is accompanied by a free-attaching option, and the raise was executed under the Company's existing placement capacity (Listing Rules 7.1 and 7.1A).

Use of Funds:

- To provide necessary financial "runway" to progress a range of discussions with industry and strategic investors, which may involve licensing, joint venture and/or distribution agreements for the Felix™ System.

For personal use only

- Support regulatory submissions for Felix™ in key jurisdictions.
- Expand RoXsta™ evaluation programs across veterinary and clinical sectors.
- Provide working capital for partner engagement and operational execution.

This raise provides additional runway as the Company transitions into a revenue-generating phase across both its Felix™ and RoXsta™ platforms.

Related Party Payments

Payments to related parties and associates of $101,029 during the quarter comprised:

- Non-executive director fees totalling $18,529; and
- Salary of $82,500 paid to MEM's Executive Director and Chief Executive Officer, Dr David Ali.

Authorised by the Board of Memphasys Limited.
