Sky extends Formula 1 partnership

Sky has today announced the continuation of its partnership with Formula 1® (F1) through a three-year rights renewal, commencing from the start of the new season in March 2026.

Every F1 practice, qualifying, and race session will be broadcast live on Sky Sport and Sky Sport Now, along with highlights packages of all F1 races, with selected content also made available through Sky's free-to-air channels.

Sky has seen a significant increase in F1 viewership in 2025 and is pleased to continue this partnership to bring F1 to New Zealand audiences for a further three years. It adds to Sky's comprehensive offering for Motorsport fans, which includes the recently-renewed Supercars partnership, IndyCar and World Superbike.
