Treasury Commentary

Bitcoin traded between US$107,000 (AU$161,450) and US$118,000 (AU$178,050) during September, supported earlier in the month by optimism around further US Federal Reserve rate cuts before moderating on softer macroeconomic data. While short-term volatility remains, DigitalX continues to execute its Bitcoin-first treasury strategy, focused on disciplined accumulation and long term value creation.

The Company's Satoshis (Sats) per share metric decreased slightly to 33.97 from 34.05 in August, reflecting an increase in shares on issue from the exercise of performance rights. Despite this minor month-on-month movement, Sats/share remains 58.45% higher quarter-on-quarter, providing investors with a transparent and Bitcoin-linked performance measure.

DigitalX continues to hold 20,227.8 SOL (Solana), valued at ~A$6.4 million², which generates yield through institutional-grade staking. While the majority of this position remains subject to a monthly release through to January 2028, it is tradeable on secondary markets and is expected to be progressively redeployed into yield strategies and/or Bitcoin in line with the Company's long-term objectives.

The Company's cash balance increased 158% from A$3.3 million in August to A$8.6 million in September, ¹ Bitcoin price was ~$US114,024.2 (A$172,047) as at 30 September 2025.

² DigitalX Bitcoin ETF Units are held via the DigitalX Bitcoin Fund.

³ Other digital assets include 20,227.8 SOL. SOL price was ~US$208.7 (A$314.9) as at 30 September 2025.

primarily driven by a partial sale of its Solana's position. This strengthened position enhances liquidity to support the expansion of trading activities, development of new Bitcoin-related products and services, and execution of DigitalX's 2,100 Bitcoin treasury target by 2027, as announced on 7 October 2025.
