PME Response to speculation

04 December 2025

Pro Medicus Limited (ASX: PME) refers to speculation overnight regarding a data breach relating to Visage Imaging.

Pro Medicus confirms that it has investigated the unauthorised access of a single email inbox by an unknown third party in July 2025. Upon becoming aware of this incident, Pro Medicus promptly engaged external cybersecurity experts and the inbox was secured and the incident contained.

A comprehensive analysis of the unauthorised access confirmed it was isolated and confined to a single mailbox, with no access to any client systems or patient data. Apart from this single inbox, no Pro Medicus systems, products or databases were accessed or otherwise affected.

Pro Medicus did not incur any financial loss or operational impact.

The analysis found that Personally Identifiable Information (PII) for approximately 100 current and former Pro Medicus employees could potentially have been accessed. Pro Medicus has notified all of these people to inform them of the potential access to their personal data. The analysis found no evidence of any other PII being exposed.

Based on the analysis, Pro Medicus does not believe that any material or commercially sensitive information was accessed.

Pro Medicus has notified all applicable governmental authorities in accordance with relevant laws and regulations.
