This expansion of our partnership with EZZ, which is highly aligned with our core strategy, comes on the back of a strong focus on compliance and the tighter commercial business processes that have been put in place in 2026, without which this deal would not have been possible. We believe this will be the first of many future collaborations that are now beginning to open to a refreshed and rejuvenated company. Successfully completing and executing this distribution partnership with EZZ and, we hope, far surpassing the minimum value in the contract, will serve as a proof point for other brands to collaborate with us in the Chinese e-commerce and B2B / retail distribution markets.”

“The company has sought shareholder approval to rebrand as Xenitra (ASX:XEN), reflecting our broader ambition in terms of both products, markets and value generation for shareholders, customers and consumers. We hope that these products will be some of the first to benefit from the Xenitra platform offering in 2026. The company is at a pivotal and exciting moment. We look forward to accelerating our growth and adding innovative strategies that deliver additional value to both the brands whom we distribute and to our consumers in China, which we will be announcing in the coming weeks.”
