Managing Director, Keith Mayes commented

"This capital raising positions Lode to accelerate key value drivers across our portfolio, with a clear focus on near-term catalysts and disciplined growth.

At Montezuma, our flagship asset, we are now funded to complete the Pre-Feasibility Study — a critical milestone we believe can materially enhance project value. The project's high-grade mineralisation and proximity to infrastructure underpin a compelling and capital-efficient pathway toward development.

Importantly, this funding also supports a pipeline of high-quality exploration assets, providing multiple opportunities for discovery and growth. We will advance targeted exploration across Tasmania and New South Wales, including Granville, Silver Hills, Uralla and our New England antimony projects.

This portfolio provides leveraged exposure to both critical and precious metals, aligned with strong global demand fundamentals.

We are pleased with the strong support from existing and new institutional investors. With a strengthened balance sheet, Lode is well positioned to deliver consistent news flow and advance key assets toward development."
