WICKEPIN PROCESSING PLANT

- WA Kaolin's processing plant was commissioned in October 2022 at a capital cost of c. $20m.
- The plant was expanded in March 2025 at a capital cost of c. $3.4m with the installation of two classifiers to produce finer grade, higher value kaolin products.
- Plant sits c.1km from the existing open pits from which ore is quarried.
- Dry processing of kaolin ore is essentially a beneficiation through air-separation processes with no deleterious chemicals/elements introduced or produced.
- Ore composition – on a dry basis Run-of-Mine (ROM) material comprises approximately 50% silica and 50% naturally occurring high-quality kaolin.
- Beneficiation process targets free silica approaching 0%.

PRODUCTION SUMMARY

- Time-on-feed beginning to trend positively, supporting higher and more consistent production rates.
- Issues affecting low recoveries from ore identified with plant improvements planned to increase yields:
 - Waste recovery project: currently waste streams comprise an estimated 30% of recoverable kaolin.
- Plant improvement strategies are focused on maintaining availability:
 - Ceramic and steel wear-resistant linings to the primary and secondary separators to be installed; and
 - Dust protection to all mobile and static process equipment to be improved, reducing downtime and maintenance.

	Current performance*	Target performance [^]	Est. date for target
Time on feed (actual hours on feed/total hours available)	45%	65%	SEP26
Tonnes produced per month	3,842	6,400	SEP26

*Current performance operating statistics are averages of the 9 months to 30 April 2026

[^] Including shift change to 7 days per week but excluding increases expected in yield through kaolin-in-waste recovery

The Challenge

1. Plant: Low time-on-feed (c.45%) due to generator & plant failures, and unscheduled maintenance shutdowns
2. Waste: Approx. 30% of the waste streams is recoverable kaolin, affecting the yield on every ROM tonne processed
3. Markets and Offtakes: The company is over reliant on the Asia-Pacific fiberglass market, amounting to ~75-85 % of sales with negative margins
4. Cost Reduction: Operating margins per tonne are currently negative
5. Governance: the Board had some gaps with respect to compliance and financial skills on the retirement of previous directors and officers
6. Balance Sheet: $33.3m of total liabilities including $27.5m of shareholder loans of which $10.1 is becoming equity

What is required, and when

1. Proposed plant improvement initiatives as above designed to increase plant availability
2. Implement waste recovery initiatives that have been scheduled/estimated
3. Increase plant output to generate excess inventory, continue product development into higher value ceramics, paint, paper and other specialty applications
4. Company wide cost review, increase plant availability and processing yields
5. Experienced, independent directors appointed to the role of Chair and NED with remit to conduct strategic cost and business review
6. The minimum subscriptions reduces shareholder loans to $17.4m versus a market capitalisation of $22.3m and an enterprise value of $34m
