Commentary

- Note: Profit and loss reconciliation from GBP to AUD included in Appendix

- 1 H1 FY26 down on pcp due to project delivery schedules. H2 revenue underpinned by record order book
- 2 Uplift in gross profit margin reflects improvement in operational efficiencies across the business coupled with the positive impact of Ovun (which generates higher margins)
- 3 Underlying EBITDA impacted in H1 FY26 due to:
 - Lower H1 FY26 revenue due to H2 revenue weighting; and
 - Higher operating costs along with the impact of ongoing ASX public company costs

1. FX Rate of 2.065 used for purposes of translating accounts to AUD held consistent with the Prospectus guidance for FY26

2. During H1 FY26, AIH amended its accounting policy for an acquired subsidiary to be consistent with broader group; this resulted in a reallocation of select operating costs to COGS

3. Excludes one-off exceptional costs (predominantly related to the IPO process) of $1.3m in H1 FY25 and $6.0m in H1 FY26

4. Excludes one-off exceptional costs, FX gains / losses and acquisition amortisation

5. Underlying Earnings Per Share (EPS) is calculated (for both H1 FY25 and H1 FY26) using fully paid ordinary shares on issue as at 31 March 2026 (422.3 million shares)

FY26 outlook & guidance

Expanding share in core markets

Expand market share in core markets by capitalising on accelerating investment in energy projects by key customers

Innovation & product development

Leverage testing and development capability to access new markets with existing material science technologies

Targeted M&A strategy

Targeted strategic acquisitions to consolidate key markets, enhance product offering and access new geographies

AI5 | Expanding share in core markets

The heightened global focus on sovereign energy security is a positive for medium to long term new project development

- AIH major customers continue to report multi-billion dollar backlogs extending beyond two years
- Demand continues in key growth geographies - Guyana, Suriname, Angola, Nigeria, Mozambique and Namibia

Accelerating investment in deepwater Oil & Gas projects

- Increasing procurement activity and investment decisions related to deepwater projects across Pacific Rim and northern parts of South American region
- Driven by heightened geopolitical & supply chain concentration risks and improving project economics for deepwater drilling

Expanding applications of core product ranges into adjacent markets

- Increasing demand for cable protection systems for subsea telecoms and defence applications
- Global subsea cabling investment expected to grow from US$23Bn in 2025 to US$55Bn in 2034¹

Emerging markets and product developments

- Track record of taking existing materials science capabilities and applying to adjacent or new markets / applications
- R&D team consisting of 60+ scientists and engineers leveraging extensive testing and validation facilities to accelerate materials development
- Enhancing existing subsea offerings with sensor technology to adapt for defence applications
- Development of cable tray protection for nuclear applications

Leveraging first EV battery platform customer to win future opportunities

- ContraFlame® F41 anti-propagation potting foam, recently selected for EV battery platform with global EV manufacturer, builds upon existing silicone material science knowledge

AIH | Targeted M&A strategy

Acquisition strategy and key priorities

- Targeted strategic acquisitions enable AIH to consolidate key markets and enhance product offering - completed 3 acquisitions over past 12 months (CAPSE (now AIT), Ovun & Imenco Aqua)
- In April, entered Scheme of Arrangement with Matrix (ASX:MCE)
- APAC market presents a relatively attractive opportunity for M&A by establishing a local presence in a currently untapped market
- Ongoing assessment of potential M&A opportunities in key geographic regions
- Following completion of the proposed Matrix transaction, AIH will retain sufficient headroom in its funding facilities to continue with further M&A opportunities

AIIS | M&A: Matrix (ASX:MCE) – Scheme of Arrangement

Matrix Composites & Engineering

On 20 April 2026, AIH entered a Scheme Implementation Deed (Scheme) to acquire 100% of Matrix Composites & Engineering Ltd (Matrix)¹

Strategic rationale

- Scarce manufacturing asset – provides immediate APAC foothold with Matrix operating the only purpose-built advanced composites and syntactic foam manufacturing facility of scale in Asia-Pacific
- Increased exposure to global deepwater projects – investment in deepwater oil and gas production is accelerating globally; solidifies position as leading supplier of technical buoyancy & subsea ancillaries
- Complementary technology portfolios – ability to drive cross-sell with Matrix's customers having access to broader product range
- Scale benefits – removes various duplicate corporate costs along with generating upside from procurement scale

Transaction is fully funded from available cash and debt facilities

Following FIRB approval, completion expected to occur in late July 2026, subject to various administrative & regulatory requirements

AI5 | Market dynamics & orderbook

Market dynamics

- The heightened global focus on sovereign energy security is a positive for medium to long term new project development
- Recent Q1 earnings calls from Baker Hughes¹ & SLB (Schlumberger) both pointed to countries prioritising supply diversification with increasing investment in exploration once the conflict subsides
- AIH has tailored solutions (already in market) that serve a variety of end markets and applications – energy, renewables, battery, marine and industrial markets – expected to benefit from increased energy investment

Orderbook

- Record orderbook of ~$239m²
- Up 33% from 31 March 2025

Note: All values converted from GBP to AUD at 2.065

1. <https://investors.bakerhughes.com/events-presentations/default.aspx>
2. As of 31 March 2026

AIH | FY26 forecast financial guidance

FY26 guidance reconfirmed:

- Revenue of $387.9m; and
- Underlying EBITDA of $62.3m
- Excludes any contribution from M&A in FY26 (i.e., Imenco Aqua or proposed acquisition of Matrix)

- Order book stands at a record approximately $239m as at 31 March 2026
- Ongoing Middle East conflict continues to impact availability & pricing of certain raw materials and is causing a timing impact to the commencement of some scheduled work
- In response, AIH has proactively increased inventory holdings to support continuity of supply and partially alleviate short term margin impacts
- While margin impacts may occur on existing contracts, expect higher input costs to be progressively recovered through repricing mechanisms and future contract pricing
- Guidance is subject to the various factors highlighted above not worsening
