APPOINTMENT OF INTERIM CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Lynas Rare Earths Ltd (ASX: LYC, OTCQX: LYSDY, LYSCF) (“Lynas”) is pleased to announce the appointment of Pol Le Roux as Interim Chief Executive Officer (CEO) effective from 1 July 2026, following the retirement of CEO and Managing Director Amanda Lacaze on 30 June 2026<sup>1</sup>.

Mr Le Roux is currently Chief Operating Officer (COO) of Lynas, responsible for operating sites in Malaysia and Western Australia as well as the supply chain, major projects, health, safety & environment and research and innovation teams. Since joining the company in October 2010, Mr Le Roux has held roles as VP Sales and Marketing and VP Downstream, delivering both sales growth and improved operational performance.

Commenting on the appointment, Lynas Rare Earths Board Chair John Humphrey said:

“Pol has over 20 years of experience in the rare earths industry and is recognised among our customers, investors and industry for his extensive knowledge of Lynas’ operations and the rare earths market. As Interim CEO, Pol will provide continuity and ensure the company continues to progress with the Towards 2030 growth strategy during the transition period.

“On behalf of the Board, I thank Amanda for her transformational 12-year tenure as CEO and Managing Director. Amanda will continue to assist with specific projects and be available to support the CEO transition until the end of September 2026.”

A summary of material variations of employment contract terms for the Interim CEO are set out in the attachment to this announcement.

The Lynas Board will update the market on the CEO search in due course.
