Key Risks (1 of 6)

Introduction

Investors should be aware that being issued shares under the placement ("New Shares") involves a number of risks. This section sets out some of the key risks associated with an investment in New Shares including risks that are both specific to SCEE and those of a more general nature that may adversely affect the operating and financial performance or position of SCEE, which in turn may affect the value of New Shares and the value of an investment in SCEE.

The risks outlined below are not intended to be listed in order of importance; instead, this entire key risk section should be reviewed. The risks and uncertainties described below are also not exhaustive.

This document is not financial product advice and has been prepared without taking into account personal investment objectives or personal circumstances. Before investing in New Shares, investors should carefully consider their personal circumstances and consult their stockbroker, solicitor, accountant or other professional adviser before making an investment decision.

Key Risks (2 of 6)

Business risks

Risk	Summary
(a) Market risk	SCEE's performance is closely tied to demand in the infrastructure, commercial and resources sectors including in relation to data centre and other works. These sectors are inherently cyclical and/or sensitive to macroeconomic conditions, including changes in interest rates, credit availability, consumer confidence, artificial intelligence sentiment, renewables sentiment, government and private capital expenditure and broader economic and geopolitical factors. A sustained downturn in activity in these sectors could adversely affect the volume and value of projects available to SCEE and, consequently, its financial performance and cash flows.
(b) Competition risk	The industry in which SCEE operates is highly competitive and fragmented. Competition from existing competitors together with new entrants in the market may place pressure on pricing, margins, and contract renewals which may impact SCEE's ability to meet its growth objectives and may adversely affect SCEE's revenue, margins and financial performance.
(c) Customer and revenue concentration risk	A significant proportion of SCEE's revenue may be derived from a limited number of major clients or projects. The loss of a major client, the non-renewal or early termination of a key contract, or a reduction in the volume of work awarded by a major client could have a material adverse effect on SCEE's revenue, financial performance and cash flows. There is no guarantee that SCEE will be able to maintain its existing client relationships or replace lost revenue with work from new or existing clients on equivalent terms.
(d) Pipeline and order book risk	SCEE's future revenue and financial performance including its guidance depends on its ability to secure new contracts through competitive tender processes and to convert its pipeline of opportunities into awarded and completed work. There is no assurance that anticipated projects in SCEE's pipeline will proceed as expected or at all, or that existing contracts in the order book will not be delayed, varied, reduced in scope or terminated. Delays or changes in the anticipated delivery of SCEE's order book or failure to convert pipeline opportunities into secured projects may adversely affect SCEE's revenue, earnings and financial position.
(e) Project execution risk	SCEE's ability to deliver projects on time and on budget is critical to SCEE's financial performance and its ability to retain customers. The ability of SCEE to deliver projects on time and on budget may be affected by factors outside of its control, including adverse weather, supply chain disruptions, inflation, mobilisation challenges, or customer-driven changes. SCEE also undertakes projects under a range of contractual arrangements, including fixed price and lump sum contracts. Under such contracts, SCEE may bear the risk of cost increases arising from underestimation of scope, unforeseen site conditions, design variations, subcontractor performance failures, labour cost increases, raw material cost increases, fuel cost increases or material price escalation. Significant cost overruns on one or more projects could have a material adverse effect on SCEE's profitability.

Key Risks (3 of 6)

Business risks

Risk	Summary
(f) Third party and contracting risk	SCEE is party to various agreements with third parties that are essential to the conduct of its operations. The failure of a supplier or a subcontractor to comply with obligations owed to SCEE could expose SCEE to financial loss, reputational damage, and claims from clients. There is a risk of insolvency or managerial failure by any of the contractors or suppliers used by SCEE in any of its activities, or that any of those agreements are terminated in accordance with their terms. If SCEE does not perform its obligations under such agreements in accordance with the terms and conditions, the agreement may be terminated which may result in contract guarantees being relied upon by its clients and could also adversely affect SCEE's reputation in the marketplace.
(g) Early contract termination and contract variations	As is common practice in industries and sectors within which it operates, generally contracts to which SCEE are party may be terminable for convenience or otherwise on short notice or there is a risk that customers could exercise their rights to reduce the scope of work. The contractual relationship for such contracts provide for the customer paying for work completed to date, unused material, demobilisation from the site and redundancies. As a result, there can be no assurance that work in hand will be realised as revenue in future periods.
(h) Disputes with contracting parties and litigation risk	SCEE may from time to time be involved in commercial disputes arising from its contractual relationships, including disputes relating to the payment of progress claims and final accounts, as well as the entitlement to, and quantum of, variations to agreed scopes of work. The provision of products and services by SCEE also carries risk of liability for losses arising from the provision of defective products or services, environmental damage, personal injury or property damage and indirect or consequential losses suffered by third parties. Any such disputes or claims brought against SCEE may be time consuming and expensive to resolve and may divert the attention of management away from the day-to-day operation of the business. The outcome of any disputes is inherently uncertain, and adverse determinations could result in a material financial liability for SCEE.
(i) Supply chain risk	The delivery of SCEE's projects can depend on the timely supply of materials, including long lead-time items. Supply chain disruption or increased demand for certain items may result in extended lead times, supply shortages, price escalation or reliance on a limited number of suppliers. Delays in, or increased costs of, procuring materials and equipment may delay project delivery, increase SCEE's costs and, where those costs cannot be passed on to clients, adversely affect SCEE's margins, financial performance and reputation.
(j) Unfavourable changes in operating conditions	Key assumptions about the operating environment, including disruption events or budget forecasts, may prove to be incorrect. This could impact SCEE's financial performance and strategic objectives.

Business risks

Risk	Summary
(k) Payment risk	Clients or contractors may be unable or unwilling to pay amounts owed for completed works. Insolvency of a client or contractor, particularly on a large project, could result in significant bad debts and adversely affect SCEE's financial position to the extent these amounts are not covered by SCEE's insurance. SCEE may also carry significant amounts in work in progress, unbilled revenue, retentions and security held by clients. Delays in the certification or payment of progress claims, disputes over variations, or the withholding of retentions may adversely affect SCEE's working capital and cash flow.
(l) Force majeure risk	SCEE's projects now or in the future may be adversely affected by risks outside the control of SCEE, including fires, labour unrest, civil disorder, war or other global geopolitical disputes, subversive activities or sabotage, floods, pandemics, explosions or other catastrophes, epidemics or quarantine restrictions. These factors may lead to interruptions in operations, supply chains and higher volatility in the global capital markets and commodity prices, which may materially and adversely affect SCEE's business, financial condition and results of operations.
(m) Health and safety risk	SCEE's operations involve inherent occupational health and safety risks. A serious workplace incident could result in personal injury or loss of life, regulatory investigation, significant financial penalties, civil liability, reputational damage, labour force and union related issues and loss of project opportunities. SCEE's ability to maintain a strong safety record is critical to its ongoing operations and licence to operate.
(n) Labour and personnel risk	The ability of SCEE to operate its business and achieve its objectives (including its growth objectives) depends on engaging suitably qualified personnel, including key employees, directors and external contractors. A failure by SCEE to attract and retain suitably qualified personnel may affect SCEE's ability to achieve its objectives. The loss of one or more key personnel could disrupt operations, client relationships, and SCEE's ability to bid for and execute projects. Any tightening of the labour market in key regions due to a shortage of skilled labour, combined with a high industry turnover rate and competing employers for skilled labour may inhibit SCEE's ability to attract and retain employees. Disputes with employees (including personal injury or industrial matters), work stoppages, changes in labour regulations or other developments in the workplace health and safety space, and accidents in the course of operations may adversely affect SCEE's performance. Increases in award wages, enterprise bargaining outcomes, or market rates for skilled tradespeople may also increase SCEE's cost of delivery. Where such increases cannot be passed through to clients under existing contract terms, margins may be adversely affected.
(o) Licensing risk	SCEE's operations are subject to a range of licensing and accreditation requirements imposed by state and territory regulators and industry bodies. The loss of, or failure to maintain, any required licence or accreditation could materially affect SCEE's financial performance and ability to operate the business.

Business risks

Risk	Summary
(o) Acquisition risk	SCEE is exploring inorganic growth opportunities, including acquisitions. There is no guarantee that SCEE will identify suitable acquisition opportunities. Even if SCEE identifies suitable acquisition opportunities, there is no guarantee that SCEE will complete these opportunities. Even if these opportunities are completed, they carry operational and financial risks, including poor integration of the acquired businesses, entry into market segments with more risk than existing operations and loss of managerial focus on existing businesses. These risks may have an adverse impact on SCEE's financial performance.
(p) Funding risk	In the future, SCEE may need to raise additional funds (by way of debt and/or equity) to continue to operate its business, meet its growth targets and/or to fund any inorganic growth opportunities. The ability of SCEE to meet these future funding requirements, should they arise, will depend upon its continued capacity to access funding sources and/or credit facilities. Funding via additional equity issues may be dilutive to the shareholders and, if available, debt financing may be subject to SCEE agreeing to certain debt covenants. While SCEE has received a term sheet from its long-term financier Commonwealth Bank of Australia in respect of new financing facilities as disclosed in this presentation, there is no guarantee that this will proceed to final form documentation. There is no guarantee that SCEE will be able to secure any additional funding as and when required or be able to secure funding on terms favourable to SCEE.
(q) Insurance risk	SCEE maintains insurance policies to manage exposure to certain risks, including public liability, professional indemnity, and workers' compensation. There is no assurance that such insurance will be adequate in scope or quantum to cover all potential claims, or that coverage will remain available on commercially acceptable terms in the future.
(r) Cybersecurity risk	SCEE collects and stores personal and confidential information relating to employees, clients, suppliers and contractors. SCEE may be subject to fines, litigation, disruption to operations or reputational damage if SCEE is subject to any cybersecurity incidents such as data breaches or fails to handle any personal or confidential information in accordance with applicable laws (including the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth)).

Equity raising risks

Risk	Summary
(a) Offer risk	SCEE has entered into a placement and underwriting agreement with Macquarie Capital (Australia) Limited (ABN 79 123 199 548) ("Macquarie") and Barrenjoey Markets Pty Limited (ABN 66 636 976 059) ("Barrenjoey") under which SCEE appointed Macquarie and Barrenjoey as joint lead managers, and underwriter under the Offer ("Joint Lead Managers"). See Appendix C of this presentation for further details of the material terms of the Placement Agreement. If the Offer does not proceed, the Placement Agreement is terminated or the Offer does not raise the funds required for SCEE to meet its stated objectives, SCEE may be required to find alternative financing or reduce its activities. In those circumstances, there is no guarantee that alternative funding could be sourced in the time required or at all.
(b) Dilution risk¹	Under the Offer, the number of shares on issue will increase from 266.0 million to up to 305.0 million. The New Shares represent 12.8% of all the issued shares immediately following completion of the Offer and will dilute the holding of existing shareholders who do not participate in the Offer by up to 12.8%.
(c) ASX quotation risk	There is no guarantee that the ASX will grant official quotation of the New Shares. A decision by ASX to grant official quotation of the New Shares is not to be taken in any way as an indication of ASX's view as to the merits of SCEE or the New Shares.
(d) Economic risk	The value of Shares may be affected by a range of factors beyond SCEE's control, including the demand for, and availability of Shares, movements in interest rates, exchange rates, inflation, fluctuations in the Australian and international stock markets, changes in fiscal, monetary and regulatory policies, general domestic and international economic activity and geopolitical conditions. These factors may negatively impact the price of Shares, irrespective of SCEE's performance.

Notes: 1. Assumes issuance at the bottom end of the price range, i.e. using issue price of $3.85 per New Share
