L1 Group expands its global platform with key appointments

L1 Group (ASX:L1G) is pleased to announce several key senior appointments to support the continued growth of L1 Group's global platform.

Chris Ashman, Head of Partnerships for North America

Chris Ashman will be responsible for identifying, sourcing, and developing strategic joint venture opportunities across the region. Most recently, Chris was head of fund investments at Jaws Estates Capital, the family office of Barry Sternlicht (Co-founder of Starwood Capital).

Chris will commence in early August based in New York. His appointment reflects L1 Group's ongoing commitment to expanding its global footprint and partnering with exceptional investment talent and businesses.

Dan Riggs, Head of Capital Formation Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMEA)

Dan Riggs will lead the Group's distribution activities across the EMEA region. He was most recently at Brevan Howard, where he spent more than 15 years in capital raising and client coverage roles. Prior to that, Dan worked in Third Party Sales at Goldman Sachs Asset Management. He has experience across a broad range of investment strategies and client types.

Based in London, Dan will be focussed on developing and strengthening relationships throughout the region. His extensive experience in European investment markets and business development will support L1 Group's growing presence across EMEA.

Jay Sullivan, Director, Capital Formation for North America

Jay Sullivan will lead the distribution efforts across North America, building strategic relationships with investors and partners to drive capital flows from the region. Jay brings experience from previous roles at Dwight Securities Management, Shannon River Capital Management and most recently founded East Island Partners.

Based in New York, Jay's expertise in distribution and investor relations will be instrumental in enhancing L1 Group's investor base and partnerships throughout North America.
