Alongside our existing technology portfolio, we are advancing a new generation of high-performance insulated building materials designed to redefine the role of the building envelope. By optimising coatings, materials and product architecture, we see significant potential to deliver superior thermal performance while extending our product platform well beyond our current offering. The rapid global growth of data centres is creating real demand for advanced building materials that reduce cooling loads, improve operational efficiency and lower lifecycle energy costs. AI is a significant driver of this demand. The infrastructure required to train and run AI models is energy-intensive at a scale the industry has not seen before, and the buildings that house this infrastructure are under real pressure to perform. As AI adoption continues to accelerate worldwide, we believe the building envelope will evolve from a passive barrier into an active contributor to energy performance and ClearVue is uniquely positioned to develop technologies that help meet this growing need.

We remain firmly focused on converting our growing pipeline of opportunities into commercial outcomes and long-term shareholder value. I would like to personally thank the teams at Alpine Capital and Spark Plus for their professionalism and commitment throughout this process, and to acknowledge the continued support of Spark Plus and our existing shareholders, whose ongoing confidence in ClearVue's vision is so valued and important."

Theresa Smits, Chair, said:

"The Board is particularly pleased to provide existing shareholders with the opportunity to participate in this capital raising alongside new investors. Many of our shareholders have supported ClearVue through years of technology development, product validation and commercialisation, and their continued belief in the Company's vision has played an important role in bringing ClearVue to where it is today. On behalf of the Board, I sincerely thank our shareholders for their ongoing support as we enter the next phase of ClearVue's growth and global commercialisation journey."
