

TALi Digital Announces Landmark Partnership to Transform Teacher Wellbeing Across Victoria

TALi Digital Limited (ASX: TD1) (TALi or the Company) is proud to announce an exciting new national partnership with You Can Do It! Education Australia (YCDI!) to deliver the Resilient Educator Partnership a comprehensive 14-month professional learning and wellbeing initiative commencing in October 2026 and continuing through to the end of 2027.

Highlights:

- The Resilient Educator Partnership (REP) has been designed to move beyond one-off professional development events that rarely create lasting behavioural change. Instead, it delivers an embedded, evidence-based approach that supports educators throughout an entire school year and beyond, building resilience as a daily practice rather than a single workshop.
- Launching REP with a membership network representing more than 250 Victorian schools, this ambitious partnership signals a significant investment in the people who make the greatest difference to student success—our teachers.
- Initial launch targeting a minimum of 60 teachers, with potential to reach more than 400 teachers, with potential revenue to YCDI! of beyond $0.5M over the contract period ending CY27.
- Other State networks expressing interest in YCDI!'s REP programme

The evidence has never been clearer. Australian educators are facing unprecedented levels of stress and burnout. Recent research from UNSW (2025)¹ found that 90% of Australian teachers report moderate to extremely severe stress, while AITSL (2024)² reports that one in five teachers leave the profession within their first five years. Teachers are also experiencing stress and anxiety levels four times higher than Australian population norms¹.

These statistics demand more than awareness—they require sustained action.

At the heart of the Resilient Educator Partnership program is a simple but powerful belief: you can't pour from an empty cup. When teachers are supported to care for their own wellbeing, the benefits extend far beyond the individual. Research consistently demonstrates that teacher wellbeing directly influences student learning outcomes, staff retention, school culture, collaboration, and psychological safety.

Participants will engage in a rich hybrid learning experience combining self-paced online learning, live workshops, expert masterclasses, individual coaching, group coaching, and practical implementation within their own school communities.

The partnership includes:

- A comprehensive suite of professional learning courses developed by You Can Do It! Education Australia
- Mental Health First Aid International Certification with three years of accreditation
- Individual coaching with ICF-accredited coaches
- Live workshops featuring leading experts in wellbeing, mindfulness, neuroscience, resilience, and self-care
- Collaborative coaching communities that encourage reflection, connection, and shared growth
- Practical resources that empower educators to embed sustainable wellbeing practices into everyday school life

Importantly, every participating school will nominate a minimum of two educators to become wellbeing champions who will build capability within their own staff communities, creating sustainable leadership and lasting cultural change across Australian schools.

A defining feature of the partnership is its commitment to measurable impact.

Each term, every participant will complete a confidential resilience assessment through The Resilience Institute Global, internationally recognised for its leadership in resilience science and assessment. Schools will receive aggregated, data-informed reporting that provides meaningful insights into staff wellbeing trends while protecting individual confidentiality.

Rather than relying on assumptions, school leaders will have access to evidence that helps identify where support is most needed and which interventions are making the greatest difference.

As the saying goes, what gets measured gets attention—and what gets attention grows.

This program represents more than a wellbeing initiative. It is an investment in creating resilient educators, resilient school communities, and ultimately a more resilient Australia.

By empowering teachers to replenish their own wellbeing, model healthy practices, and foster stronger relationships with colleagues, students, and families, the partnership creates a ripple effect that extends beyond the classroom and into the wider community.

The Resilient Educator Partnership marks the beginning of a long-term vision for sustainable educator wellbeing across Australia. As the inaugural cohort embarks on this journey, TALi Digital and You Can Do It! Education Australia look forward to expanding the program in future years, supporting even more schools to create thriving staff, stronger cultures, and brighter outcomes for every learner.

Together, we are building resilience that lasts—for educators, for schools, and for future generations.
